The Work Continues...

As part of the sabbatical re-entry process for our minister, the Committee on Ministry organized a visioning process held on Friday evening and Saturday morning August 25 and 26. Our UUA consultant, Dan Wiseman, traveled from Bloomington. Once again we offer thanks to Mary Ann Foley for providing hospitality which saved us hotel expenses for the consultant. Approximately 40 participants were welcomed with a tasty light meal, provided mostly by the Committee on Ministry, followed by ample opportunity for fellowship prior to the official start of the program. The official 'get acquainted' activity was sharing at your table, which UU principle was most important to you. We then discussed at our tables what we would like to see in this congregation in the next five years.

Noemi presenting at the strategic planning

The room had flip chart sheets posted around the room with various titles to organize our ideas. Encouraged to write out as many ideas as we wanted on sticky notes and to affix them to the large flip chart pages grouped by common themes. After breakfast on Saturday, we reviewed all the ideas and indicated which ones we were willing to work on. The consultant encouraged us to follow up with the got purpose?

To find our purpose we should ask at least two questions.

1. What can we control?

2. What is our subjective response to objective reality?

This is very important to understand when finding a purpose. If you have no control why try?

Another thing to consider is what to do with what fate has handed you.

We may have little control over what happens to us but we can control our response.

Our environment is an objective reality

But subjective reality, our hopes and dream can make a difference. Gravity exists but the Wright brothers imagined a way to overcome it.

To achieve our purpose in life, we must use our time wisely Steven Covey, a life coach, who says who asks us to consider two other questions.

3. what is important.

4. what is urgent?

Deciding what is important is a question of values. Do you value family, work, education travel, the arts? One way to determine what you value is to look at what you spend your time doing? But that is not always the best because of urgent demand of life.

Some things are Urgent and important like an injured child. It is easy to determine that your purpose is to get the child to the ER. But some things are urgent and unimportant like eating junk food.

We get swept away but what other people say is urgent such as "Let me tell you the latest rumor!" Some things are not urgent and not important such as reruns of sitcoms that run 24 hours a day. We can choose to ignore or watch them any time. But the hardest things to do are the things that are important but not urgent.

These get squeezed out of our schedule. We say "I did not have time exercise today." even though we know health is important. To have a purpose in life, one must be alive. We say "I did not write a letter today" even though we know relationships are important to maintain. We say, "I did not have time to think about what is important today." Perhaps we need to schedule "sit still" into our calendars.

Take time to figure out what is important to you. Judge your ability to change your situation. Make time for what you value in life. There will be many interruptions. The world is full of urgent and unimportant things. If we focus on doing what is important, our purpose of life will unfold.

"The purpose of the church is to heal the consequences of lovelessness and injustice in the hearts and souls of our members so they might heal the community and together heal the world."

RE OUR volunteers

Thanks to a group of dedicated volunteers, phase one of the REvisioning project is complete. We met during the first week of September to redo all of the RE classrooms. Please check out the before and after photos.

I couldn't have made it through this project without help from many volunteers who painted, moved furniture, hauled items, hung bulletin boards, took out trash, vacuumed, sorted, organized, decorated, donated supplies, etc. I was incredibly impressed by our youth and their vision for their classroom. Most of them helped out on Labor Day and even came back after school daily to help complete the project.

To the following volunteers, I can't thank you enough and I'm thrilled at what we were able to accomplish working as a team. The rooms look phenomenal!

Christina Wright

At times I find myself attempting to impart some bit of advice or wisdom upon my children that I have had to learn the hard way. I just hold my breath and hope they take from my words. They tend to move forward with this new information testing out my theory along the way.

My classroom teaching experience began in a Montessori themed environment. The activities were simplistic yet, beautifully engaging. The materials were introduced and methods instructed through role modeling. The children were then invited to give it a try. They would then manipulate the items in their own ways until reaching a full understanding of how the work was intended to be completed. Allowing them to follow their own paths and make their own mistakes is not for the faint of heart.

Looking Inside Out

The kickoff for the annual pledge drive was held on September 10 after service. This year the stewardship committee collaborated with Program Council's Interests and Activities Fair. Fellowship Hall was invigorated with conversation and enthusiasm as participants mingled and learned of the many ways they can be involved in church activities. Big thanks to all who staffed tables and to those who participated.

Kim Smith, chair of the stewardship committee, passed out pledge forms and announced the new stewardship feature this year, an option for continuous pledging. If a member checked the 'continuous pledging' box on the form, they will be exempt from completing an annual pledge card. The amount of the pledge will remain the same until reported differently.

Numerous committee and interest group chairs were present promoting their committees and groups. Each were given the opportunity to verbally promote their cause. The two book groups shared their friendly rivalry. Linda Prokopy, chair of the feminist book group, shared that the feminist book group, "is the group that actually reads the book". This sparked laughter and a remark from someone in the other book group to shout, "Yeah, but we have more fun". As an active member in both groups I endorse each of them. Neither is right or wrong. While their perspectives may differ, the impact on fellowship remains. That's what interest groups are all about!

Two of the new visioning group opportunities were represented: Kathy Willowode's "Community Within" discussion group focusing on self-care for individuals and for the UUCTC community. Brent Jesiek will lead a team doing outreach at Purdue.

Brent Jesiek will lead a team doing outreach at Purdue. Brent is on the left, Alice Pawley and Ellen Gruenbaum on the right, all professors at Purdue.

The newest interest group is Jean Herr's Canasta group. You do not have to know how to play, you can learn as you go. Enthusiasm was so high that they met at her home the evening of the Interest Fair. Future meetings will likely be held one Friday evening per month.

If you were unable to attend on September 10, not to worry. You may join a committee or interest or visioning group year round. A complete list of committees, interest and vision groups along with the chairs' contact information is available online at <http://uuctc.org/staff-and-leadership/committees/program-council/>. projects that garnered the most energy and enthusiasm. There were more ideas than people who could take charge. Not to worry, we will hold onto the ideas for future consideration.

The ideas that had volunteers to lead them to fruition include:

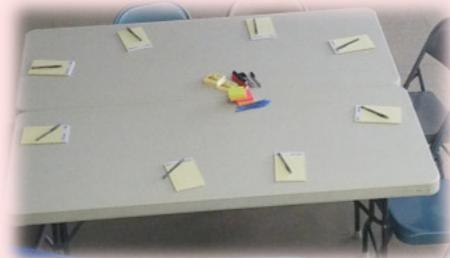

- The Aesthetics Taskforce, led by Noemi Ybarra, has as its mission keeping our space beautiful by reviewing our spaces, asking congregants for input, make recommendations, and improve the look of our building.
- PurdueUU, led by Brent Jesiek, seeks to build stronger connections between the church and campus, including co-

Sam and Jada Haughey reviewing sponsoring events with other Purdue-affiliated groups and working to further growing membership among Purdue students, faculty, and staff. This initiative can also expand to include Ivy Tech and/or Harrison College if volunteers are willing to lead such a charge.

- Swag, headed Jada Haughey, will work on promoting our brand with Tee shirts, brochures and book marks at our fundraisers that are open to the public: art fair, plant and rummage sales.
- Welcoming Visitors, headed by Josh Prokopy, will develop a rides to University Place UU congregants.

- Nurturing Our Humanness, led by one of our newest members, Stephen David, will offer projects directed at the UUCTC community designed to improve our individual and collective selves. These will include: Conversation Circles, Group Diversity Programs, and Celebrating Humanism: Poetry Slam
- Adult Religious Exploration,

sustainable and organized system for ensuring all visitors are welcomed. This will involve coordinating with the greeters and possibly moving the Welcome Table into Fellowship Hall.

- Transportation for Seniors, led by Joan Marshall, will provide transportation for UU Westminster residents to forum and services. Ideally, someone will also volunteer to coordinate Eric Thiel has agreed to chair this committee that has been inactive for several years. Some ideas generated include using a variety of modalities, Ted Talks, OWL, evening forum, programs UUA curriculum.

All the above visioning project report to Program Council. Ideas without an individual lead will be outline in a future article.

Soul Shine Essentials By Josh Prokopy

Amy runs Soul Shine Essentials out of room 212, providing Essential Oil-based products and educating people on how to use them to help create a toxin-free lifestyle. She operates the business with her mother, and best friend, Linda, who recently retired from Purdue after twenty seven years at the Memorial Union.

Amy first learned about Essential Oils from a friend who knew she was on a wellness journey. Essential Oils have since become very important to her. She is passionate about using them for detox and health in her own life, and finds great joy in introducing them to others.

Amy and Linda use their space at the church to offer free, educational classes and special events. They also have open hours – posted on the door of room 212 – for anyone who would like to drop in and see them. Visitors will learn about their line of chemical-free personal and home care products for everything from nutrition to baby care, skin care, and non-toxic make-up.

Her hope is to inform and inspire people to make some fun and easy improvements to many areas of their life, including their spiritual, physical, and emotional well-being.

Amy really enjoys working out of the church. Everyone here has been so helpful and supportive, and she's grateful to have a space where her long-time friends, Kathy Willowoode and Bill Welge, also spend a lot of time. She loves the open-minded attitude of everyone she's met so far, and is looking forward to making many more new friends.

For more information, call Amy at 765-427-1273 or Linda at 765-724-6305. You can also email them at soulshinejewelry333@gmail.com (Amy) or bucy@purdue.edu (Linda), or stop by room 212 for a list of their hours.

Strengthening

Our Community

UUCTC at OutFest 2017

Strengthening Our Community inside and out. This year's annual stewardship campaign theme has really resonated with our congregation.

Internally our efforts include a visioning process where we are working on "where are we going? And "How do we get there?"

Externally, our efforts and presence continue to grow in the Greater Lafayette Community as we become actively involved in the social, economic, and human rights issues that are facing our country, our state, and our city.

Strengthening our Community has broader reach than 333 Meridian Street, West Lafayette. Strengthening Our Community means that we are learning, reaching beyond our comfort zone, and taking action. Shakti Gawain said, "The universe will reward you for taking risks on its behalf."

It doesn't matter if you take those risk inside of UUCTC or outside in the community... Just take a risk. By taking that risk, you become the strength of our community, you become a force that strengthens our community and lastly you become an example. An example of how everyone one of us can strengthen our community.

The Benefits of Stopping

Painted welcoming signs for the church, Larry

Guntert lead a spirited drumming circle, Bill Baker gave a presentation on Ba'hai, we had the chance to learn about some of the social justice work going on at the church, Annabel and Linda Lou Prokopy showed people how create wonderful handmade cards, Gunner led a group in whiffle ball, and a huge crowd showed up to sample beer and talk about the role of alcohol in human culture and society.

Saturday evening, Bill Welge

Eric Thiel and Charlie on guitar, and Derrick Schertz on ukulele, we lit up the neighborhood with everything from Cindy Lauper to some classic UU hymns. People stayed late into the night, laughing, joking, or just watching the fire.

Meanwhile, the kids had a blast running around the church, playing ping pong, and sleeping in the sanctuary. And more than a few people took advantage of the many classrooms we had set aside to bunk down for the night on couches and air mattresses.

It was an incredible weekend overall. Everyone pitched in to help, and we all enjoyed a couple days of fun and community, getting to know new people and rekindling friendships with folks we hadn't seen in a while. So mark your calendars now for August 31 to September 2nd, 2018, and let's do it again!

The church hosted a fantastic retreat over Labor Day weekend. More than 70 people came together to attend workshops, share meals,

Friends relaxing and enjoying and hang out in an incredible show of community spirit.

The weekend started with an invocation led by Reverend Charlie, with reflections on what we hoped to get out of the retreat and some uplifting songs. We then headed outside for a bonfire, with more songs of plenty of s'mores and brats.

Saturday was filled with fun and interesting workshops. Eric Thiel and Amy French gave a fascinating teaser class for Adult OWL with exercises on abuse, consent, and the relative dangers of different types of sex. Bob Rode took kids fishing at the Purdue Aquaculture Lab.

We had a bike rodeo, the kids

Ping Pong Tourney

organized a ping pong tournament, and everyone had a great time watching the competitors go at, especially the final match between Bill and Eric Thiel. Then it was back to the bonfire.

Charlie got out a projector and set up a screen on the outside wall so we could all read the lyrics. With

Smile

Do you ever wonder about the magic of a smile? How a smile encourages others or brightens a mood?

Well, what if you knew that a Smile could help UUCTC continue to provide support to organizations like Planned Parenthood? What if a smile could help UUCTC, fund internal repairs, increase programming or replace worn equipment? By now you are probably wondering what kind of Smile can do these things?

I know a smile can change the world but how can a smile provide funding for UUCTC to be a change agent in the world?

This particular Smile is part of Amazon. By shopping on Amazon you can help UUCTC Smile.

AmazonSmile is a website operated by Amazon with the same products, prices, and shopping features as Amazon.com. The difference is that when you shop on AmazonSmile, the AmazonSmile Foundation will donate 0.5% of the purchase price of eligible products to the charitable organization of your choice (Amazon.com, 2017).

Getting Started

1. Visit smile.amazon.com
2. Enter your email address and password
3. Go to Accounts & Lists

4. Select Your AmazonSmile
5. On the right hand side you will see a button “change your charity”
6. Enter “Unitarian Universalist Church of Tippecanoe County” in the field under Or pick your own charitable organization.
NOTE you must enter the full name of the church not UUCTC.
7. Click the select button that appears next to Unitarian Universalist Church of Tippecanoe County

Enjoy your Amazon Shopping experience and SMILE!

Up with Technology!

One of the challenges that all organizations face is communication. Communication is especially difficult with a multi-generational audience. The leaders of UUCTC are working on this issue:

- A small committee headed by John Carlson is working on ICON CMO cleanup
- Communication Committee and the IT Committee are establishing @uuctc.org emails for committee chairs and board members

And coming soon as a result of congregant feedback is the ability to make online donations.
